

Sales associate (solar panels)

A sales associate works closely with customers to determine their needs, answer their questions about your products and recommend the right solutions.

Key skills

Strong numeracy, data analysis, critical thinking, strong organisation skills and good verbal and written communication.

Energy efficient manager

An energy efficiency manager enables organisations to reduce their energy consumption by helping them to implement more sustainable energy, carbon and water systems.

Key skills

Written and verbal communication, data analysis, organisation.

Product designer

Product designers improve the usability of everyday items by creating new designs and enhancing existing ones.

They investigate how existing products work, develop ideas and make plans and designs.

Key skills

Written and verbal communication, creativity, attention to detail, liaise with clients, adaptability and ability to plan.

Project Manager (Green Energy)

Project managers are responsible for planning, organising, and directing the completion of specific projects for an organization while ensuring these projects are on time, on budget, and within scope.

Key skills

Creativity, research skills, adaptability, numeracy skills and strong understanding of mass production, logistics, distribution requirements and customer needs.

Energy efficiency consultant

Energy efficiency consultants deliver energy efficiency strategies.

They work in a variety of setting including schools, food & drink, manufacturing or motor racing.

Key skills

Research skills, problem solver, data analysis, verbal and written communication.

1. Which roles and skills would help Amy and Tom encourage other people to buy and use energy efficient devices?
2. Which two jobs would you pick out of the five to help?
3. How would they be involved?
4. How would understanding about energy transfer help them in their role?